Ross resident John W. Rakow (center) celebrates Memorial Day by pointing out to his children, Jennifer and Dem, that reports of his death, as Mark Twain once said, were highly exaggerated.

For years Rakow's name has been at the top of a plaque on the Doughboy statue commemorating Marin men who died in World War II.

GARBAGE INTO 'GOLD'

Trash: Out-Of-Place Resource

By PETER TONGE The Christian Science Monitor News Service

(First of Six Articles) BOSTON - "Turn that garbage into gold!"

That's today's cry as increasing numbers of people recognize that trash simply is a resource out of place.

Where this misplaced resource once was merely a nuisance, now it threatens society itself. The United States alone generates a mountainous 190 million tons of garbage a year currently and the figure is constantly expanding. Some estimates suggest it could be close to 290 million tons by 1980.

So ... old tires are being turned into oil liquids, gas, and tar under an experimental process now being investigated by the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Mines.

The bureau also has made oil from garbage — something like 31 gallons of crude oil from a various places today.

Such recycling is still in its infancy in the U.S., experts say, although on a broad scale it is more advanced here than abroad. Nonetheless, limited as it may be, it is a beginning attracting more and more attention among businessmen, scientists, government officials, and even housewives. "Mountains of solid waste" is no descriptive exaggeration; anyone who has visited .the trash-disposal center of even a moderate-sized American city will vouch for its accuracy. In Illinois they are building an actual mountain out of the stuff. Mount Trashmore they call it, and it's destined to become a winter skiing resort and general recreation center in the non-too-distant future.

Pollution also is spurring this recycling campaign. The world's resources are finite; like the Cornish mines which once supplied the whole world with tin, they can be exhausted.

Eventual shortages are predicted in known reserves for oil, timber and many minerals - even water. More oil, coal, and gas has been used in the past 30 years than in all history before that time: more materials have been mined, manufactured and discarded since 1950 than the sum total of everything fabricated before then. To quote the U.S. National Wildlife Federation: "Man is perhaps spending his mineral capital faster than any other resource." If he continues to the present rate, coal will last a Central Research Laboratory. futher 300 years, some experts Against this, there is dispute over how long known reserves may last.

Spurred on by these twin' problems of mounting trash and an imminent shortage of takenfor-granted resources, man is at last devoting a small but increasing part of his technological knowhow toward their solution. This series of articles will give some details. Experiments in progress include: The Department of the Interior's Bureau of Mines has investigated what it termed the "destructive distillation" of old tires; one reason is that the U.S. discards 100 million tires a year. Gloves For Pat

MOSCOW (UPI) -Pat Nixon is showing around a new memento of her stay in Moscow: a pair of boxing gloves.

Two wire service photographers presented Mrs. Nixon the miniature gloves Sunday night to commemorate "the battle of Red Square, the battle of GUM and the battle of the Kremlin."

The gloves referred to the running clash between the 30man Russian security detachment assigned to Mrs. Nixon and the press corps trying to dog her every step as she visited famous Moscow landmarks including the big GUM depart-

Mrs. Nixon laughed when she saw the gloves and has laughingly shown them around to staff members who fought the battle with her.

Privately, Mrs. Nixon was appalled at the cordon of Soviet agents who inhibited her free movement and threw something of a damper on the friendly atmosphere she sought to create. In Washington, and elsewhere in the world, she travels with only two or three Secret Service agents, and likes them to stay in the background.

Earlier on Sunday when Mrs. Nixon was asked what she wrote in the leather-bound guest book of the Kremlin's armory museum, she snapped,

The duke became King Edward VIII of England at 11:55 p.m. Jan 25, 1936, when his father, King George VI, died. He ruled until Dec. 10, 1936, when he abdicated. He went on radio the next day, his voice breaking with emotion, to say:

"I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and discharge my duties as king as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love.'

At his side when he died was the "woman I love," Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore, a vivacious, outspoken commoner who twice had been divorced. OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)-Po- the homes of the murder suslice identified the fifth victim Sunday in a series of narcoticsrelated killings which resulted in four Hell's Angels being jailed on murder charges.

pects Saturday. The murder charges were brought in the slaying a week ago of Severo Agero, 29, McAllen, Tex., who was found shot to ing house in Oakland.

The same day three men were found shot to death in nearby San Leandro. Police said the bullet that killed Agero was fired from the same gun as one of the slugs that killed Garry Kemp, 30, a friend of Agero, Willard Thomas and

Kelley Smith, both 26. Don Whyte said an informant told police Agero had arrived from Texas recently with $90,00 worth of cocaine for sale and was killed after the transfer of about $10,000 worth of drugs in the house in which he died. The informant led police to the body of Mrs. Long. Whyte said the woman had been trying to become acquainted with Kemp, one of the three men slain in San Leandro, in order to buy cocaine.

But Kemp and the other two victims suspected her of being a narcotics agent and killed her, Whyte said.

An Oakland police spokesman indicated that the three men may have been killed to avenge Mrs. Long's death and "because of the $90,000 worth of cocaine."

The officer said Agero had been a "narcotics courier" for the three slain men and the murderers had simply gone from Agero to the three men in their quest for cocaine.

News Service WASHINGTON, D.C. - Cigarmakers saw a special tax break blow up in their faces.

"Congress has gotten the message that the taxpayer is fed up with expensive tax loopholes for the rich and special interest groups," commented Rep. Les Aspin (D) of Wisconsin, the congressman who led the successful fight against the cigar bill in the House of Representatives.

Under an old tradition, members of the House Ways and Means Committee have pushed through the House without hearings and little or no debate various minor tax bills that often have given sizable tax benefits to private interests.

Such bills are called "members' bills" because they are sponsored by members of the Ways and Means Committee.

HR 3544 was such a bill. It would reduce the excise tax on cigars by $120 million between now and 1979 and $21 million per year after that. It was spensored by Democratic Rep. James A. Burke, whose Boston, Mass., district has some cigarmaking firms.

This was one of 41 members' bills that emerged from the Ways and Means Committee last October.

At the same time, however, the bill dramatically reduced the tax load. In defense, the committee report held that the cigar industry had a "relatively low" rate of return. It was said to be nine per cent of sales in 1970, a recession year. (Many other industries had lower profit levels that year.)

February 29, HR 3544 came up for a vote in the House along with 21 other members' bills. Normally, the rules of the House would have been suspended, and the bills would have zipped through without HR 3544 was one of the 15. It was put back on the legislative calendar for April 17.

Immediately Aspin sent a letter to members of the House stating: "At a time when tax reform has become one of the most important issues in the country, I find it incredible that we are being asked to approve a blatant $120 million tax break for the cigar industry without the benefit of committee hearings and without the right to offer amendments to the bill on the floor."

Aspin was joined in the lobbying against the bill by Common Cause, Americans for Democratic Action, and Ralph Nader's tax-reform research

In a letter to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D) of Arkansas, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Albert H. Turkus of the Nader group wrote: "It seems ironic that, on the very day when millions of taxpayers will be completing their struggle to comply with their obligations under the internal revenue code, you and the members of the Committee on Ways and Means will be asking the House to enact this special-interest tax

"Congress is not likely to pass any more loopholes - at least for a while," said Aspin. He figures most representatives don't want to vote for anything that could be regarded as a loophole.

A key staff member of the Ways and Means Committee, however, held that it was withdrawn because Mills was in New York making speeches and would not be on the floor to handle it. He held there should be no problem in passing it.

Let's Look Beyond Next Year's Tax Bill

A week from tomorrow, voters in the San Rafael High School District will ballot for the second time on a proposal to combine three school districts into one.

It is a simple proposal. It is called "unification." But - like so many things that have to do with schools and government it is made to appear rather complicated.

California has perhaps the most complicated school district setup to be found anywhere. For two decades, the state has been trying to get some order out of the chaos through "unification." It has had some success, but not much.

WHAT IS "UNIFICATION," anyhow? It is simply putting elementary and high schools into the same school district.

Once upon a time, San Rafael had such a district. Elemenatry and high schools were part of the San Rafael School District. Ironically, a state law that was intended to reduce the number of school districts changed that.

. The law required that every elementary school district be a part of a high school district. So several districts in Marin, from which children were sent to San Rafael High School, were incorporated into San Rafael High School District -Novato, Dixie, and the former San Jose, San Quentin and San Pedro Elemenatry School Districts among them.

Subsequently, Novato split off to become Marin County's first unified school district. Later it absorbed San Jose.

Meanwhile, the San Pedro and San Quentin districts were dissolved and merged into San Rafael Elementary School District. That left three districts

SIX YEARS AGO unification of the districts lost by 350 votes. It passed in Dixie district but was defeated in San Rafael Elementary School Dis-

The principal reason, apparently, was that the unification would temporarily increase school taxes for those within the San Rafael Elementary District while decreasing them for those in the Dixie district.

This prevails still, although the Dixie district is gaining more rapidly, percentagewise, in assessed valuation and gradually closing the gap.

We believe the voters in the San Rafael High School District should look beyond next year's tax bills and vote to end the confusing nonsense that hampers proper government of our local schools — both elementary and high school. The way to do it is to vote "yes" on the unification proposal.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Santa Barbara's Plan Worth Copying

While in Santa Barbara last week, I was delighted to read in the Santa Barbara News-Press that a San Rafael delegation was also in this seaside town, observing the downtown plaza and offstreet parking facilities.

San Rafael will make no mistake in creating a mission atmosphere. The architecture and landscaping of the shopping plaza has provided the community with a gracious and attractive area to visit and shop. Visitors to Santa Barbara find parking no problem in the plaza section, and the many delightful eating establishments make touring elsewhere at meal time unnecessary.

Conventioneers and other visitors to our Bay Area would welcome such a community to visit and shop. Why not San Rafael?

BRUCE SCHOENFELD

Novato Street Job Speedup Advocated

San Rafael.

Shortly before the last election of city councilmen, we received numerous promises in regard to the rebuilding of a stretch of road along Tamalpais - from the intersection of South Novato Boulevard to Center road. Not only is the traffic situation bad but there is absolutely no room for pedestrians - especially for those living at the Novato Retirement Home and look to this stretch of road for a short walk and daily exercise.

We have been informed that that the road would be remodeled or sidewalks made in order to alter the situation. Up to date nothing has been done. In the meantime, one man is in the hospital from a difficult fall involving a broken leg, one lady was taken today as a result of a fall, there have been numerous slides and falls unreported.

It seems as much as we appreciate what is being done to beautify this city, our first concern should be the health of our senior citizens. No one seems to know or care just when the project to improve this road will begin, but before it becomes a real calamity, please give us some definite reason why this work on the road hasn't been started? People of our age don't like to make changes especially when our relatives live in Novato and represent hearty taxpayers.

Items from the I-J, May 24: On page 47, a half-page ad, subscribed by dozens upon dozens of eminent attorneys, urges re-election of Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

On page 26, ".... Guilty Plea in Burglary." A vicious thug, caught redhanded burglarizing the Ross Town Hall, turns on the cop, slugs him with his own handcuffs, wrests away the policeman's gun and flees the scene only to be cornered down the road after a wild chase. Sentence: No more than nine months in the county jail as a result of a "plea bargain" with the selfsame Judge Gardiner! (Last paragraph states: "The district attorney refused to agree to the arrangement.") On page 38, "Jail Term for Knif-ing...." In this one, it seems the perpetrator committed acts of sexual depravity upon his victim after stabbing her in the stomach with a knife and compounded the felony by preventing her from receiving medical attention until the following day! Sentence: Nine months in the county jail as part of another plea bargain with the good Judge

On page 28 (sandwiched between the above), "Today's Editorial - Incumbent Judge A Credit To County." Under this banner heading two columns extoll the virtues of this very same judge...

Few will dispute that actions still speak Iouder than words --- no matter what the gentleman says or writes, no matter if he is so expert in the law as to be able to recite the Penal Code from memory, the citizens are the losers when criminal vermin are turned-loose upon them, time after time, to repeat their depredations after little more than a symbolic slap on

JOHN P. LIPPITT Larkspur.

Attacks On Rights For 'Conservation'

Your reporter, Pat Angle, should be commended for two recent columns (May 4 and May 19, Reporter's Notebook). In the first column, Miss Angle pointed out that property rights are being violated in the name of conservation, citing demands that "certain land be 'saved' even if it has to be stolen from the poeple who paid for it and own it". In the second column, Miss Angle pointed out that Marin County would not be so attractive now if old-time residents had not "saved" it and she scores newcomers who want to prevent others from moving here to enjoy the very things which they themselves came here to enjoy. In both columns, she points to the use of the "moratorium on development" as the technique advocated by these newly-arrived saviors of Marin for building an invisible wall around the county to repel other would-be residents

Miss Angle might well have included other tactics currently being advocated by some who claim to be "conservationists". These include (1) demands that the Marin Municipal Water District solve its water shortage by refusing new connections and (2) the use of agricultural preserve zoning of whole areas of the county, not as a means of complying with the amended Williamson Act but as a means of acquiring open space without paying for it, as now pushed by the county planning department.

In the case of the water district, the directors are charged by law with providing water for residents of the district. They have lost an election on a plan which would have been a costly "blank check" ... The voters of the district have not rejected the district's attempts to provide more water; they have simply said that the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct is not the way to do it.

In the case of agricultural preserve zoning, the Williamson Act does not authorize the use of its zoning provisions to provide open space for recreation or to preserve some other resident's view. It simply says that if a farmer wants to enjoy the benefit of a lower tax rate in order to be able to continue the business of farming, then he must accept zoning of his land which is compatible with agricultural uses ... I do not blame the board of supervisors for mistakenly zoning the first agriculture preserve area nor the directors of the MMWD for failing to properly interpret the results of last November's defeat of the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct. I attribute both actions to the atmosphere of confusion and antagonism generated by those who would take away our inalienable right to own private property and who libel those of us who truly wish to conserve the piece of Earth which we purchased and for which we continue to pay taxes by daring to call themselves

Lagunitas.

Nixon, Running On His Record, 'Steals The Democrats' Clothes'

(This first in a five-part Drummond series on "Politics '72" appraises the unprecedented kind of campaign Richard Nixon is preparing.)

Here is a Republican President who is going to be running on the Democratic side of most issues.

Here is a conservative President who has visibly become a political liberal in action, whatever his philosophy. Many Democrats remark wryly: "He

HERE IS THE RECORD of the major shifts of the Nixon Administration, and in total it could hardly be more sweeping: ECONOMIC POLICY — The President imposed wage and price controls which most conservatives abhor and which Nixon has always opposed. FISCAL POLICY - The administration is running huge, successive budget deficits, $100 billion in three years. It has raised the debt ceiling another $50 billion and devalued the dollar. It is gearing the budget to full-employment revenue which justifies large deficit spending. This is pure Keynesian economic doctrine.

FOREIGN POLICY - The tough anti-Communist line which Nixon long preached and practiced is being cast aside. Old shibboleths are discarded. The administration voted to seat Red China in the United Nations, and Nixon hastened to Peking. He favors detente in Europe and a reduction of U.S. forces around the DISARMAMENT POLICY - Nixon is pressing hard to get a nuclear arms agreement with the Soviets. He used to advocate superiority in strategic weapons. Now he only seeks "sufficiency," which means equality.

TRADE POLICY - Nixon has come to support a more liberal, favored-nation trade policy with numerous Communis countries. He is permitting trade in many heretofore banned strategic items. He seeks expanded trade with both China and Russia.

WELFARE POLICY - Time was when many conservatives and most Republicans looked upon Social Security as radical. Dwight Eisenhower put an end to that idea. Now Nixon has gone further than any of his Democratic predecessors. He is advancing a welfare reform which costs more and covers more than anything in the past and would provide a minimum guaranteed income for every family below the poverty level.

ANTI-POLLUTION POLICY - The administration has advanced anti-pollution legislation which vastly expands the intervention of the federal government into every state, city and county in the nation. THERE ARE SIGNIFICANT areas of

Many leading Democrats favor radically reducing our military defenses. Nixon

Many Democrats want to repudiate the role of the United States in helping to keep the peace which has been part of the foreign policy of every Democratic President from Franklin Roosevelt to Lyndon Johnson. Nixon doesn't.

Nixon wants to see other free nations share responsibility in peace-keeping, but he holds to the view that the United States must play a leading role in keeping the peace or there won't be peace.

IN THE WIDE-RANGING, often startling shifts in policy which have marked his three years in office, I am not suggesting that Nixon has moved primarily for political reasons or that his changes in direction are ill-considered or unsound. Nixon is not primarily a philosopher or an ideologue. He is essentially a problem-solver, a quarterback whose instincts are conservative but not imprison-

Who Wants Alaska Pipeline? Most Of The Alaskan People

VALDEZ, Alaska — Before you stick your nose into the great Alaskan pipeline controversy, understand one thing: Most Alaskans are fiercely for it. Voraciously is a closer word. Thousands of them expect to get oil-rich from it, and everybody knows that is the filthiest kind.

Some of them actually will. You do not have to come to Valdez (pronounced Val-deez), bouncing over the snow-covered, cloud-hidden mountains in a light plane, to find that out. This is where the oil will wind up after it is piped some 800 miles from the shore of the Arctic Ocean. From a tank farm alongside this deep fiord, it will be transferred to supertankers, for delivery mainly to the West Coast of the "lower

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO May 29, 1962

The New York Stock market made a partial recovery after a sudden downturn that brought memories of "Black Tuesday" in October, 1929.

"Folks used to worry whether they'd be here tomorrow. Now they worry whether tomorrow will be here."

fail.) Some 400 miles of will pipe is stacked and waiting on the site of old Valdez, which was wrecked by the earthquake of 1964.

But as I said, you do not have to take the trouble of coming to Valdez to find out how most Alaskans feel about the pipeline. At the Seattle airport, waiting for the jet to Anchorage, an entrepreneur in a gold shirt with string tie and western boots, stated the majority case against the environmental worriers in a voice loud enough to be heard in Juneau.

"Hell, they can't hurt that country. There's too much of it. When there's 1,000 miles on each side of something, what's 50 feet? There's millions of acres up there, just wasteland. They act like it's .gold, every inch of it."

AND IN JUNEAU, Gov. William Egan is in what sounds like a desperate struggle with the oil companies. But he is, in fact, desperately for the pipeline. He just wants the state's share of the bonanza to be as lucrative as possible.

The other day he reported on a state study of how much income would flow from the Prudhoe Bay fields and how it would be split up. He estimated total annual sales value of the oil at just over $2 billion, with the state getting $377 million, production and transportation expenses taking another $757 million, and the oil companies profiting by more than 44 per cent, which is $918 million a year before federal taxes.

Predictably, the industry argued that the governor had "vastly oversimplified" the matter, that the state would make more in the first five years of production than the companies. In turn, Egan labeled this response a "blatant and irresponsible shotgun attack" on his report.

So back and forth it goes, and the only sure thing any layman knows is that the amount of money involved is tremendous even by oil industry standards. That is why Egan is lashing his legislature to pass a state severance tax on every barrel of oil pumped, and another tax on oil and gas transportation property. He realizes that if such publicly productive laws are to be passed, it has to be now, for it will not happen after oil money has had a longer chance to grease the political process in Alaska.

AFTER HEARING such crass calculations at considerable length, it was refreshing to tune in to a Marie L. Blood, who sent a poetic open letter of thanks for his disputed pipeline go-ahead to Rogers Morton, secretary of the interior, c/o the Valdez Copper Basin News:

"Now that we have the green light, it's time to say hooray!

The Greeks carved leisure into the faces and very bodies of their statues - a grace beyond technique. It is there for all would-be grasshoppers to study: the art within art. To be a good grasshopper is as difficult obviously as being a good ant, and that is Aesop's message for today.

In some instances ground rubber from old tires has increased agricultural yields; the experimental dumping of old tires to form reefs off Florida's east coast is attracting fish to the area. Japanese fishermen have done the same using old car wrecks. At the same time recycling metals from junked cars is becoming increasingly efficient Sawdust, once a waste that had to be burned, has long been turned into newsprint and hardboard in many countries. Chemicals also can be extracted from it.

Technology also exists to convert yesterday's city garbage into tomorrow's structural tim-

There are still innumerable problems to be overcome mainly in finding a use for some of the salvaged materials. Also, in refining the experiment to commercially viable form.

But there are some hopeful signs - and some dedicated, innovate pioneers who are charting the course.

NEW YORK - It's a little company, overlooking a polluted creek here in a rather rundown warehouse section of Brooklyn.

It's called Ecology, Inc. and for more than a year it has successfully and profitable converted city trash into a basic material for a good many prod-

Fifteen years ago it was just a dream in the making. Today it is being studied by city officials here in New York and elsewhere. Overseas, the Japanese are particularly interested and the Dutch - the biggest composters of city waste in the world - describe it as "a most impressive operation.

Right now the company is concentrating on high-grade fertilizers. By next year it expects to be in the hardboard manufacturing business. After that: The production of a substitute for structural timber

All these products, and a good many more, can be made from a fibrous-looking dust or compost, the result of less than two full days of treatment at the plant.

Everyday more than a dozen New York City garbage trucks drive up a three-story ramp here to dump their loads into one of two hoppers feeding the plant. The 150 tons-a-day intake becomes 75 tons of composted material some 40 hours later. The garbage first is milled and the metal magnetically extracted. Then it is passed slowly through an eight-deck digester — the heart of the process - where it is composted to stability, a stage when all bacteriological avtivity within the product has ceased.

(Paradoxically, rather than disposing of the trash, compost preserves it - but in a form that is highly useful to man.)

At this stage the fine, dry material, stemming as it does from largely cellulose city trash, is not quiet the equal in plant nutriments of the home gardener's compost pit. Even so it is a good soil conditioner, a rival to peat moss on the

A'S WIN

1st Start: Blue Sharp

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)- Vida Blue is back in all his glory and young George Hendrick finally has arrived as a big league hitter, so the sun shines bright today on the Oakland A's.

Blue and Hendrick were the big heroes of a 10 inning 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Sunday in Oakland and before a near full house of 43,300. The victory gave the A's a sweep of the previously redhot White Sox and a comfortable game lead in the American League West.

Today, the A's play the Texas Rangers in a holiday doubleheader with John Odom pitching the opener against Pete Broberg and newcomer Dave Hamilton, a lefthander called up Sunday from Iowa of the American Association, starting the second game against Jim Shellenback.

Blue made his starting debut Sunday and pitched one-hit ball in the first five innings while Hendrick drove in three runs with a single and a two-run homer. His homer came in the bottom of the 10th after the White Sox had gone ahead 4-3 in the top of the inning. It was George's first in the major Blue, the 1971 AL MVP and

The A's jumped White Sox starter Tom Bradley for three runs in the sixth on scoring hits by Reggie Jackson and Hendrick and a sacrifice fly by Mike Epstein, but the White Sox caught up with relievers Bob Locker, Harold Knowles and Rollie Fingers and took the lead at 4-3 in the top of the 10th.

That hit seemingly cinched the game for Chicago, which came to town Friday night riding a six-game winning streak. But in the bottom of the 10th after Jackson and Sal Bando grounded out, Mike Hegan, a late game defensive replacement for Epstein at first, singled and Hendrick followed with his homer.

The victory went to Fingers, now 4-1, while Steve Kealey took the loss. He's now 2-1.

After the game the A's announced some player changes. Outfielder Brant Alyea was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for infielder Marty Martinez while Hamilton and outfielder Adrian Garrett were recalled from Iowa. Sent to Iowa was pitcher Don Shaw while catcher Larry Haney was placed on waivers.

season surprise Tribe, 5-1 while sixth win of the season. the Detroit Tigers maintained its lead in the Eastern Division with a 5-4 win over the New York Yankees. Also, Minnesota topped Texas 7-2, California trimmed Kansas City 4-2, Oakland edged Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings and Boston downed Milwaukee 4-1. In addition to the game, the Brewers also lost manager Dave Bristol who was fired by general manager Frank Lane. Former Milwaukee Braves' catcher Del Crandall, now managing the Brewers' farm club at Evansville, was named to succeed Bristol.

ORIOLES

The Orioles, backed by Jim Palmer's three hits including a two-run double, extended the slumping Indians' loss skein to six. Palmer went the distance in gaining his fifth win in eight decisions.

Peppery Billy Martin, who got a strong relief performance from rookie Chuck Seelbach, as the Tigers made it three straight over the Yankees. viewed the Indians' collapse philosophically. "I'm not surprised the way Cleveland started with the players' strike and all," Martin said. "It aided the young clubs. But I see this as a race between us, Baltimore and Boston now that the veterans are coming around."

The Petaluma pitching staff allowed only two runs in four games, and only one of those runs was earned. Trojan coach Roy Lattimore used a different pitcher each game and each went the distance.

John Alejos was the winning pitcher in the final game. Dan Cader was the winner when Petaluma beat Anderson, 9-1; Sam Solis was credited with the 8-0 victory over Soquel and Rick Mossi pitched a 1-0 shutout of Mira Loma.

Top hitter for Petaluma was first baseman Larry Cristani, 7 hits in 13 at bats.

Rookie catcher Carlton Fisk drove in three of the Red Sox' four runs with a home run in the seventh inning and two-run double in the eighth as reliever John Curtis, making his first appearance since being recalled from Louisville, picked up the win.

Pitcher Clyde Wright helped win his own game for California by delivering his third career home run in the fifth inning off loser Dick Drago. Wright (3-2), who limited the Royals to just four hits, was forced to leave the game in the seventh inning after re-injuring his ankle on a hard slide into third base.

Ryun's Status Uncertain For Compton Track

COMPTON (UPI) - Jim Ryun is entered in the Compton Invitational this weekend, but is uncertain now if he will run because of an injury Saturday to his right thigh.

Ryun pulled out of the United States Track and Field Federation 880 final after running a 1:49.1 qualifying head on Friday. He said his injured thigh is "nothing serious," but it may upset his training schedule.

Ryun hopes to be a top contender for the Munich Olympics when the trials are held next

Actress Yvette Mimieux: The Renaissance Woman

By NORA E. TAYLOR The Christian Science Monitor

News Service BOSTON — Yvette Mimieux - the name is practically a synonym for glamor. Miss Mimieux herself, however, is a Renaissance woman in the sense that Peter Ustinov is a Renaissance man. She pursues many interests eagerly - and most any of them could be another career.

She does, however, consider herself firstly as an actress. The other things are extracurricular.

Veteran of 14 pictures, she was in Boston last week for the opening of her latest, "Skyjacked," in which she costars with Charlton Heston.

The young star began acting on stage in a small theater. Her first interest at that time was in set designing. However, George Pal saw her when he happened to attend a performance, and he signed her to a contract with MGM. Since then she has made seven films for that company, and one each for a number of others. Now she is negotiating with 20th Century-Fox for production of her own film script. A fall shooting schedule is expected. Writing films is one of her avocations.

MIS MIMIEUX was keeping up her glamor image in a white knitted pantsuit. But on a wintry spring day when the hotel had turned the air-conditioning on full, she was also cold. She bore the discomfort with as much fortitude as she must have borne the insects and heat in Yucatan recently where she spent five weeks on an architectural dig.

That's another of her avocations. Her father (French) is an Egyptologist, she says. "His children were given a thorough background. Tales of the Pharaohs were our fairy tales." She has pursued this particular interest to Angkor Watt, Bali and Easter Island, where two years ago she was part of a group that discovered caves in the interior wall of the volcano, forgotten since those who once under his watchful eye. lived there abandoned them ge-

The character I wrote is like an onion, layers on layers on layers, multi-faceted, interesting, desirable, manipulative . . . It's about what people are saying to each other and what they mean." She first called the theme "Counterpoint," but since that is already the title of a film, she has to find another name for it.

An advocate of women's liberation, though not a participant in its present front - "I have always been liberated" --she is also an advocate of men's liberation. She thinks that any man who does not know he has options beyond the 9-to-5 routine needs liberating. In "Skyjacked," Miss Mim-

A Good Battleground On Food Prices—Meat Counter

WASHINGTON - The best place to fight the battle against rising food prices is at the meat counter, according to industry and government experts quoted in two recently reprinted booklets.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Good Player Will Try To Locate All The Cards Quickly

"He plays his cards well," you often hear people say of a bridge player, but this is very faint praise. A really good player handles the dummy well in addition to his own cards. An expert tries to locate all of the missing cards as quickly as possible; and then he is in position to play all of the cards, just as though he could see through the backs of the cards.

South West North Pass All Pass

Opening lead - ♦ 2

SMALL DIAMOND

Put yourself in the South seat, trying to make six spades against the opening lead of the deuce of diamonds. To begin with, you should easily read this as a singleton. West simply wouldn't lead the deuce of diamonds from any other holding.

If you played low from the dummy at the first trick, East probably wouldn't return a diamond at the second trick; you would simply lose the setting trick late instead of early. Your best chance is to take the ace of diamonds at once. But then you would still have a lot of work.

Try to work out the distribution of the unseen hands. East should have a seven-card heart suit for his opening bid; and the opening lead marks him with three diamonds. That leaves room for only three black cards in the East hand. This fact dooms East-West if you play all of the cards instead of just what you can see

STAGE END PLAY

Draw trumps with the ace and king, discard two diamonds on dummy's top hearts and ruff dummy's last heart. Cash the top clubs, discarding a diamond from dummy, and lead your last club. When West follows suit, discard another diamond from dummy

A VICTORY

You have already extracted East's three black cards, so you know that East cannot win this trick. West must win and return a club (for lack of anything else to lead). You will discard dummy's last diamond, ruffing in your own hand — thus making your difficult slam contract. DAILY QUESTION

ART REVIEW

Sausalito Festival Packs 'Em In

By LAURA DEVENDORF There is no question that the Sausalito Arts Festival packs them in, no matter what time of year it's held. Crowd tallies for the initial two days of this first springtime event came to 5,700. And 6,000 more are expected to have passed through the Central School playground when the festival closes today at 6

Naturally, the sponsoring Sausalito Art Association and Sausalito Art Center are delighted. Proceeds, after expenses, go to operate the nonprofit art center. And while there is no final total on artists' sales, they, too, seem equally pleased, with business reported as brisk.

What is it all those people come to see, or do, or buy? Just about everything loosely classified as art. Yards and yards of paintings line fences and long panel-filled aisles. Sculpture pushes its wood, plexiglass and metal forms up from the asphalt. And rich, thick colors
